OKLAHOMA CITY REJOICES

JUDGE CAMPBELL DISMISSES CAPITAL CASE FOR WANT OF JURISDICTION.

STILL BEFORE STATE COURT

One of Attorneys for Guthrie Says Matter Is Still Pending in State Court.

Guthrie, Ok., June 23.—Guthrie lost its preliminary fight in the federal court today when Judge Ralph E. Campbell of the Eastern district dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, the bill in equity of W. H. Coyle, a local property owner, asking an injunction to prevent removal of the temporary seat of government from here to Oklahoma City. While the three days argument took wide range and covered generally that clause of the Oklahoma enabling act requiring the temporary capital to remain here until after 1913 and upon which the suit was predicated, the court expressly reserved any opinion touching either the part of congress to impose this condition or whether the same was binding in view of its acceptance by the constitutional convention.

The people of Guthrie are disappointed at the turn the case took. It may be truthfully said that from the day the case was instituted there was more or less doubt entertained upon the jurisdictional question alone. "The case is still before the state court," said Judge Frank Dale, one of the attorneys for Guthrie, "and we will follow our rights there. It must be noted, however, that in passing Judge Campbell refrained from expressing an opinion as to the 1913 clause. We still contend that it is binding and feel that Guthrie's rights have not been jeopardized in the least by the federal court failing to take jurisdiction in this particular litigation."

State Court Case Different.

The case pending in the state courts differs from that before Judge Campbell today, in that it was instituted by County Attorney Hepburn in behalf of the people, and while as squarely presenting the issue of validity of the 1913 clause, also raises questions of validity of the ballot title under which the election of June 11 was held.

Attorney General West who made special appearance for Gov. Haskell and Secretary of state Cross, has filed in the Logan county, district court a demurrer to Guthrie's amended complaint. The demurrer, he stated, would be argued as soon as Judge Huston would hear it, and if the state officers were not successful there further proceedings would be instituted. He declined to say whether this would be by appeal or by application for writ of prohibition to the supreme court. As it stands, the state officers are under injunction from the state district court, and it is understood tonight there is a probability of further proceedings in the federal court. What this will be attorneys decline to announce.

PONTOTOC MAN NOT BROKE BY A LONG SIGHT

C. F. Burden, Pontotoc County Largest Individual Tax Payer Has The Money.

There is one man in Pontotoc county and Pontotoc is his post office, who furnishes a good object lesson to some farmers who are inclined to be pessimistic.

Another thing he shows what a man can do in this locality by using common sense, mixed with get up and get. He is assessed this year on $9,130 actual cash on hand, the largest amount for any one man in the county. (One man was heard to remark that he did not think before there was a man in the world who had so much actual money.) More than that, he is paying on $5,990 worth of cattle, $809 on mules, $560 on horses, $296 on hogs, $420 on grain, and $245 on other property.

After hearing this, we venture there are men who are doing a good commercial business and have been reckoned as men of means in the commercial world who would like to swap out lock, stock and barrel with this Pontotoc man. Who said anything about hard times?

NEW MANAGER FOR THE "NEWS"

George E. Ellsworth who has for the past two years been connected with the Democrat has the business management of the Ada Daily and weekly News. 20 SOLDIERS KILLED AND MANY WOUNDED

Train of Four Coaches Dashes Down Steep Declivity.

Mexico City, June 23.—Twenty federal soldiers are reported to have been killed and many more than that number injured today when four cars of a train in which the troops were being transported on the Manzanillo line of the National Railways in the state of Colima, broke loose from the locomotive and dashed down a steep grade.

When the cars reached a curve after tobogganing for six miles and attaining a terrific speed, they left the track and were dashed to pieces. The cars formed the rear portion of a troop train of thirteen cars which was proceeding toward Platanar. The number of men they contained was not known, but the railway officials here estimate that there were not less than 150. Many men are said to have jumped from the cars when they started down the grade and thus saved their lives. The accident was due to the breaking of a coupling and the failure of the brakes.

As fast as possible passenger Engineer Watson backed the remainder of the train to the scene of the wreck and sent a messenger to the nearest telegraph station.

Within a short time relief expeditions were dispatched from Zapotlan, Colima, and Guadalajara. In the meantime the work of caring for the wounded was done by army surgeons who accompanied the troops. Platanar near which place the accident occurred, is 115 miles southwest of Guadalajara.

HELLO GIRLS HEAR 11,000,000,000 CONVERSATIONS IN ONE YEAR

Washington, June 23.—There were more than 11,000,000,000 conversations by telephone in the United States in 1907, according to estimates in the census bureau's report now being printed. This shows that in the five years of 1902 to 1907 the use of the telephone in the United States more than doubled, to be exact, increased 124 per cent.

This huge increase was accompanied by an astonishing growth in the telephone industry and a wonderful ramification of telephone wires in every part of the country. The miles of telephone wire in use in 1907 were 12,999,369 or over one and a half times the 4,900,451 miles strung in 1902. The number of employees of telephone companies nearly doubled in five years. The average number of wage-earners in 1902 was 64,028; in 1907, 118,871.

The capital stock and funded debt of the telephone companies outstanding in 1902 was $248,031,058, while five years later it was $814,616,004, an increase of 134 per cent. More striking was the increase in the earnings of the companies. In 1902 they reported incomes aggregating $86,825,236; in 1907 this total revenue had swelled to $184,461,747. The increase in revenue was therefore 112.5 per cent. But the increase in operating expenses and fixed charges during the five year period was but 108.4 per cent, from $61,652,823 in 1902 to $118,486,196 in 1907. This does not include the interest on the funded debt which increased 250.7 per cent in the same period, from $3,000,000 to $12,000,000.

How the telephone business has outstripped the telegraph is shown by 1907 figures, which state that in that year out of 14,500,000 miles of wire in use, 89 per cent was for telephones and 11 per cent for the telegraph business.

Police Court

There was good deal of activity manifested for a while this morning in police court. It was found that the policeman on their rounds last night came upon something looking suspicious in the Flats, consequently some half dozen characters were rounded up and brought before court. Three plead guilty and paid fines and for lack of evidence the other cases were dismissed.

COMO MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

BOY HUSBAND ARRESTED AND CONFESSES TO MURDERING WIFE IN ITALY.

BROTHER'S KEEN FORESIGHT

Capt. Scott, Brother of Murdered Woman, Detects Youth at Hoboken After Debarking.

New York, June 23.—The Como murder mystery is solved.

Porter Charlton, an American youth of good family, sought by the police of two continents, was arrested in Hoboken, N. J., shortly before noon today as he stepped from the North German Lloyd steamer Princess Irene. In less than an hour he had confessed without a tremor that in a fit of temper he had killed his wife in a fit of unconsciousness with a mallet, jammed her body in a trunk and sunk it in the waters of the Italian lake.

She was Mary Scott Castle of San Francisco, a woman sixteen years his senior, divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer.

Charlton But a Boy.

Charlton is only twenty-one and a son of Judge Paul Charlton, law officer of the Bureau of Insular Affairs at Washington, and a classmate of President Taft at Yale. The boy married Mrs. Castle in Wilmington, Del., last spring over his parent's protests. Ill mated, and both erratic temperament, they sailed for Italy for their honeymoon. The murder brought it to an end and her body was found in the lake by fishermen on June 10.

Fleeing from Italy under an assumed name, almost penniless and shabby of dress, Charlton on landing ran straight into the arms of Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, U. S. A., the murdered woman's brother. He was taken to police headquarters at Hoboken, where, after a pitiable collapse so spasmodic that it produced extreme nausea, he regained his composure and unflinchingly signed the confession. Tonight he is behind the bars in the Hoboken city jail, pending settlement of the complicated problem of extradition brought about by his arrest.

Brother's Foresight Accurate.

Capt. Scott's foresight, directed so accurately that it falls little short of a weird premonition, resulted in young Charlton's arrest. Stationed at Fort Wright on Fisher's Island off New London, Conn., Capt. Scott obtained hurried leave of absence at 1 o'clock this morning and went to Hoboken to scan the passengers of incoming liners. Three Hoboken detectives aided him.

He accompanied the prisoner to police court but did not hear the heart-rending confession that poured from the young man's lips. Charlton, whose collapse after arrest seemed due to fear of Capt. Scott, refused to make a statement in the army officer's presence and the latter left the room. Throughout the ordeal, Capt. Scott bore himself well, but at the request of detectives, who had noticed a bulge beneath his coat, which proved to be a pistol, he surrendered the weapon without objection. In his signed confession Charlton declared that no one else than he had a hand in the death of his wife.

GERMAN OFFICERS FORBIDDEN FUNNY PAPERS

Munich, June 23.—Much to the amusement of the public, the minister of war has prohibited German officers reading Simplicissimus, the illustrated weekly. Because of the easier press laws in Bavaria this comic journal is published in Munich and circulates all and sundry every week from the monarch to the mechanic.

The monarch doesn't mind much, but the German officer is the most sensitive being in the Fatherland and his dignity is so fragile as to be explosive at the slightest touch. So there was no surprise when the war office declared the paper too naughty for military consumption.

A few papers protest against the order and even some officers are indignant at this supervision of the officers' reading matter. Meanwhile the paper has had a big boost to its circulation by this official advertisement.

Entered as Second Class matter,
March 26, 1904, at the Postoffice at Ada, Okla., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

This paper is in receipt of a communication from one of the prominent farmers of this county, on the prohibition question, and while the article is very ably written, and has many strong points, the limited space in our daily publication prevents our printing it. The News finds it impossible to devote the space in its columns to the discussion which the publication of such contributions be only fair to open our columns we to allow one party space, it would be only fair to open our columns to any one who cared to make reply. Wishing to be absolutely fair to every one we must decline to publish all communications of this order.

Would a republican administration, in the event one were elected, repeal the law establishing separate schools for the races? The statehood bill introduced by Dennis T. Flynn contemplated the establishing of single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single and not separate schools. That endorsement has never been reversed. Hence we conclude that a very pertinent question is, "Would a republican administration abolish our separate school system?"

FOR REPRESENTATIVE

W. H. Nettles authorizes his announcement for this position

W. H. Nettles of this city authorizes his announcement for the office of Representative of Pontotoc county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Mr. Nettles is one citizen of Pontotoc county who needs little introduction. He came from Missouri 25 years ago, and has resided in this immediate vicinity for 15 years. He for years worked at his trade, that of mechanic and blacksmith; but when statehood came he was chosen justice of the peace of the Ada precinct which which place he now holds. During the history of the City he served on the council two terms and is at present a member of the city school board.

As to the sort of man he is, every body is aware. He is a splendid citizen, pure, honest and brave. His life among this people is an open book, and he invites the voters to make a careful scrutiny of his character and qualities.

If elected he says he pledges to perform his duty and to advocate truly such laws which would build up society and promote the well-being of the state. His name appears in the regular announcement column of this paper.

TOOK MESSAGES FROM SEA

"Uncorker of Ocean Bottles" Was Post Comparatively Recently Done Away With.

A curious English post, now abolished, was that of the uncorker of ocean bottles, created during the reign of Elizabeth. It owed its existence to an odd incident, in that, extraordinary as it may seem, the first news to reach England of the Dutch taking Nova Zembla came by "bottle post."

The story runs that one day a fisherman on the sands near Deal picked up a bottle, which in due time was laid before the lord high admiral of England. When opened a parchment setting forth the news just mentioned was found. When this was shown to the queen, Elizabeth was so struck by the circumstance that she at once decreed that for the future all sealed bottles cast up by the sea were to be dispatched to the lord high admiral, whose property they should become, under the designation of "sea prizes." To impress this decree upon the minds of all, especially fishermen and those dwelling on the sea coasts, Queen Bess characteristically enough intimated that neglect to comply with the royal command would mean the gallows.

In this fashion came about the office of the uncorker of ocean bottles, who alone had the right to open the bottles cast on the coast of the kingdom. Thomas Tonfield was the first Englishman to fill this post, and the records show that during one year he opened 52 bottles, flasks, flagons, and other ocean messengers, containing all sorts of news touching on matters of the sea. This office endured till the time of George III., by whom it was abolished.

WATER CARRIED 350 MILES

Supply for Miners of an Interior Australian Gold Field Is Conveyed Far.

In the early days of the western Australian gold fields water was more precious even than gold. There was very little to drink and none to wash in.

But the whole field lies on a salty seepage and very soon after the first rush vast condensers were working to produce distilled water. But this was at best a miserable makeshift, and at last a great enterprise was set in hand to give the new population of the fields a satisfactory water supply. It is a scheme that any country might be proud of having put through.

A practically limitless supply of water is conserved by a weir 23 miles from Perth and thence to the gold fields, a distance of 350 miles; it is carried in steel pipes, 5,000,000 gallons of it a day, and distributed everywhere it is wanted. You see the great 30 inch pipe running alongside the railroad and your way up to Kalgoolie and every now and then pass a pumping station with a little settlement round it in the heart of the bush.

This was the last great attack on nature's defense of her treasure and now she has capitulated and is yielding up gold at the rate of millions a year.

EGOTISTICAL MEN

"Is there anything on earth," inquired the fluffy-haired blonde, "that makes you so utterly weary as the condescending action of some man you know who assures you in that complacent way peculiar to the type, that he is going to call upon you very soon? As if," she added, with an air of disgust, "we were all sitting around holding our breaths waiting for the telephone to ring, in the fond hope that it will prove to be some masculine admirer who desires to honor us with his company! I'm sick of it!"

"Me, too!" chimed in with ungrammatical fervor the girl with the coronation braid.

The fluffy-haired blonde embroidered two polka dots with a puzzled frown. "You see," she said, "if the girl has a large and well-worn sense of humor she merely smiles to herself and wonders if it would pay to jolt the man into a state of enlightenment. But if her sense of humor is undeveloped she asks herself with disturbing qualms if it is really possible that the creature thinks she is crazy about him."

She regarded the entire row of polka dots with disfavor, preparatory to beginning on another. "Not long ago," she continued, "I had the satisfaction of freeing my mind on the subject."

"Really?" cried the girl with the coronation braid.

"It was just by accident," explained the fluffy-haired blonde.

"You know," she proceeded, "I was visiting Marie in Milwaukee last month." The others nodded. "Well, a certain man whom we will call George and whom I have always known, happened to be there at the same time, on business. Now, I'm fond of George, in a way.

"When he called up the house where I was visiting and informed me that he was 'going to get out to call,' I was very amiable about it. He wanted to set a time, but naturally I couldn't make an engagement without consulting my hostess. So Marie and I talked it over, and she insisted upon shifting the entire week's calendar in order to leave an evening open for George to call. We had something interesting on hand for every night, too, but Marie felt that it would be rude not to receive George. Finally we managed it for Saturday, and I wrote George a note to that effect.

"In the course of time Saturday came, and so did George. This is the way he began: 'Well, well, you've been here ten days, have you? Really, I did mean to come out before this. I hope you'll excuse me. I've been up to my ears in work.'

"The members of the sewing circle exploded with mirth, but the fluffy-haired blonde was too indignant at the recollection even to smile. "He thought," she said, "that the joy of my visit was blighted by his inattention!"

"I was perfectly paralyzed for a moment, and then I proceeded, without heat or prejudice, to elucidate certain ethical points upon which it seemed to me George's education had been deficient.

"He listened with startled attention until I had finished, then he said, in a surprised voice: 'You mean, then, that you think I am egotistical?'

"'Painfully so,' I told him.

"'But really,' he assured me, looking shocked, 'really, you don't know me at all if you think that, not at all! Besides, I honestly was awfully busy, or I would have come out—'

The fluffy-haired blonde stopped and sighed reminiscently. "Then Marie came down," she said, "and took in the situation."

"It has just occurred to me," suggested Marie, "that if we all three like motoring, we can telephone to Charles King. He asked us to go out tonight, you know, and seemed very much disappointed that we had an engagement." She turned to George so sweetly that he was naturally obliged to acquiesce, but I noticed that he was thoughtful all evening."

The sewing circle giggled again.

"Of course," murmured the girl with the coronation braid, "men are not all like that."

"Indeed they aren't," agreed the fluffy-haired blonde, with satisfaction. "When Marie comes to visit me I want to show her that my friends are not all like George. And if we marry the nice, unassuming ones—"

"We mostly do," said young Mrs. Allison, soothingly. "The others remain bachelors, and their egotism grows upon them."

"Not Such an Empire, After All. Somehow it shrinks the breadth of our country when we know that an old man can walk across it, from sea to sea, in 77 days.—Philadelphia Record.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE COCA-COLA FACTORY

On our rounds yesterday we dropped into Ada's new bottling works for the first time since that institution opened up for business. We were agreeably surprised at the neatness and cleanliness of the factory, machinery and furnishings, which gave the casual visitor the impression that the conditions under which Coca-Cola is bottled are conducive of cleanliness and sanitation. The company has recently purchased a supply of metal cases for the use of its distributing department; and this improvement is one of the latest things along its line.

Manager Riley is to be congratulated upon the excellent business his firm is building up. He believes in Printers' Ink and Publicity. Cleanliness and Good Service to his patrons, and is getting out into the business field accordingly.

A Joke on An Editor.

A good joke on an editor who went one evening to report a party at a home recently blessed with a new baby. He was met by the hostess at the door and after the usual salutations he asked after the baby's health. The lady who was quite deaf and suffering with grip, thought he was asking after her cold, and answered that although she usually had one every winter, this was the worst one she ever had; it kept her awake at night a great deal and at first confined her to her bed. Then noticing that the newspaper man was getting serious she said that she could tell by his looks that he going to have one just like it and asked him to go in and sit down.—Exchange.

The new school house at Lovelady will be completed by the first of next month. It is up to date and thoroughly equipped with all the modern conveniences for a rural school.

Arrested at Stonewall.

Doc Reeves and J. R. Reeves of Stonewall were arrested and brought to Ada late yesterday evening by deputy Jim Dillard and Jim Adair charged with crime of having unlawfully in their possession intoxicating liquors. On being arraigned they plead not guilty whereupon the court fixed their bonds at the amount of $350 each which they made and returned to their homes.

In the Open Air.

There's no use going to Colorado or sitting on your lawns during these warm Sunday evenings to keep cool and pleasant. A force of men is busy cleaning the lawn and erecting a platform and stringing light, and beginning next Sunday the evening services will be in the cool of the open air. Spirited singing and soul-searching services.

Dogs and apes could be trained to enter the election booth and vote the ballot emblem. They could be trained to tell the difference between the pictures of an eagle and the picture of a rooster. And such dogs and apes have just as good a right to vote as illiterate negroes, whose only knowledge of the ballot is of the emblem on its face.

Two Adaltes Feeling Better.

S. E. Chapman and Joe Guest write homefolks that the Claremore water is helping them right along, saying their health has improved and that they are feeling like four year olds.

"THE THING THAT HAS MADE WHAT WE ARE."

"You will remember that it was Thomas Carlyle who laid down the well-known yet somewhat novel dictum regarding the important part which clothes play in the make-up of our civilization. He said: 'Clothes have made us what we are.' It might at first glance look like a rash undertaking to attempt to dispute the finding of such a close observer and profound philosopher, especially when we recall the altogether brilliant essay which formed the basis of this judgment. But it should be considered that Carlyle lived in a day and generation when the science of advertising as we know it was unknown and when mankind in the mass had not as yet entered under the potent spell of printer's ink. Hence, I submit that this Carlylean saying has been outworn and is out of date, and that had he lived in these times and observed the all-pervading influence of advertising in every department of human affairs, 'Sartor Resartus' would probably never have been written, but in its place an equally brilliant gem of literature upon the fascinating subject of advertising.

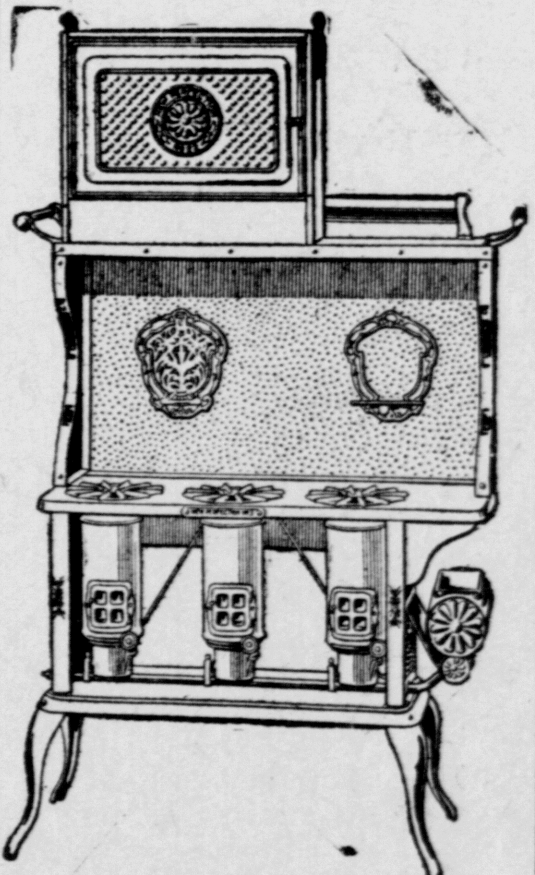

"If it can be said of any one thing in particular that it has made us what we are, that one thing is advertising. The printing press, the electric wire that encircles the globe, the onrushing express train that crosses the continent, the majestic ocean greyhound, all the agencies which in our day make a joke of time and space and with these the intelligent mass of mankind, from the shoeblack to the prince, the devoted missionary who labors for the soul of the heathen in darkest Africa to the illustrious statesman whose every utterance is eagerly listened to by myraid millions—all these are but the pawns and players in the great world-wide game of advertising.

Behold the magnificent results of advertising upon every hand. Advertising has peopled America. It is even now performing the miraculous achievement of impelling the hard-headed American farmer to forsake his country, to turn his back on the stars and stripes, and in numbers of over 100,000 per year to cross the border into Canada and take upon himself the obligations of a British subject. Advertising is the modern wonder-worker—Oklahoma is its prophet. Even the American invasion of Canada is an advertising triumph of no greater import than is the epic of empire building which the past decade has witnessed in this southwestern country, and which has not yet reached its high noon. Advertising goes hand in hand with faith—it does more than move mountains; it creates desires, establishes confidence, it stimulates human effort, it is the backbone of commerce, it is the greatest constructive agency in all the world. "All of us are advertisers, consciously or unconsciously, by our speech, our habits, our appearance and our actions and the projection of a man's business into the newspaper and periodicals or on the billboards, or blazoned across the sky in letters of dazzling light, is but a logical step in advance of the commonplace.

OKLAHOMA CITY REJOICES

JUDGE CAMPBELL DISMISSES CAPITAL CASE FOR WANT OF JURISDICTION.

STILL BEFORE STATE COURT

One of Attorneys for Guthrie Says Matter Is Still Pending in State Court.

Guthrie, Ok., June 23.—Guthrie lost its preliminary fight in the federal court today when Judge Ralph E. Campbell of the Eastern district dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, the bill in equity of W. H. Coyle, a local property owner, asking an injunction to prevent removal of the temporary seat of government from here to Oklahoma City. While the three days argument took wide range and covered generally that clause of the Oklahoma enabling act requiring the temporary capital to remain here until after 1913 and upon which the suit was predicated, the court expressly reserved any opinion touching either the part of congress to impose this condition or whether the same was binding in view of its acceptance by the constitutional convention.

The people of Guthrie are disappointed at the turn the case took. It may be truthfully said that from the day the case was instituted there was more or less doubt entertained upon the jurisdictional question alone. "The case is still before the state court," said Judge Frank Dale, one of the attorneys for Guthrie, "and we will follow our rights there. It must be noted, however, that in passing Judge Campbell refrained from expressing an opinion as to the 1913 clause. We still contend that it is binding and feel that Guthrie's rights have not been jeopardized in the least by the Federal court failing to take jurisdiction in this particular litigation."

State Court Case Different.

The case pending in the state courts differs from that before Judge Campbell today, in that it was instituted by County Attorney Hepburn in behalf of the people, and while as squarely presenting the issue of validity of the 1913 clause, also raises questions of validity of the ballot title under which the election of June 11 was held.

Attorney General West who made special appearance for Gov. Haskell and Secretary of state Cross, has filed in the Logan county, district court a demurrer to Guthrie's amended complaint. The demurrer, he stated, would be argued as soon as Judge Huston would hear it, and if the state officers were not successful there further proceedings would be instituted. He declined to say whether this would be by appeal or by application for writ of prohibition to the supreme court. As it stands, the state officers are under injunction from the state district court, and it is understood tonight there is a probability of further proceedings in the federal court. What this will be attorneys decline to announce.

PONTOTOC MAN NOT BROKE BY A LONG SIGHT

C. F. Burden, Pontotoc County Largest Individual Tax Payer Has The Money.

There is one man in Pontotoc county and Pontotoc is his post office, who furnishes a good object lesson to some farmers who are inclined to be pessimistic.

Another thing he shows what a man can do in this locality by using common sense, mixed with get up and get. He is assessed this year on $9,130 actual cash on hand, the largest amount for any one man in the county. (One man was heard to remark that he did not think before there was a man in the world who had so much actual money.) More than that, he is paying on $5,990 worth of cattle, $809 on mules, $560 on horses, $296 on hogs, $420 on grain, and $245 on other property.

After hearing this, we venture there are men who are doing a good commercial business and have been reckoned as men of means in the commercial world who would like to swap out lock, stock and barrel with this Pontotoc man. Who said anything about hard times?

NEW MANAGER FOR THE "NEWS"

George E. Ellsworth who has for the past two years been connected with the Democrat has the business management of the Ada Daily and weekly News. He needs no introduction, no recommendation to the business men of the City; for they know him to be a man who knows his business and who is absolutely fair in business dealings.

20 SOLDIERS KILLED AND MANY WOUNDED

Train of Four Coaches Dashes Down Steep Declivity.

Mexico City, June 23.—Twenty federal soldiers are reported to have been killed and many more than that number injured today when four cars of a train in which the troops were being transported on the Manzanillo line of the National Railways in the state of Colima, broke loose from the locomotive and dashed down a steep grade.

When the cars reached a curve after tobogganing for six miles and attaining a terrific speed, they left the track and were dashed to pieces. The cars formed the rear portion of a troop train of thirteen cars which was proceeding toward Platanar. The number of men they contained was not known, but the railway officials here estimate that there were not less than 150. Many men are said to have jumped from the cars when they started down the grade and thus saved their lives. The accident was due to the breaking of a coupling and the failure of the brakes.

As fast as possible passenger Engineers, Watson backed the remainder of the train to the scene of the wreck and sent a messenger to the nearest telegraph station.

Within a short time relief expeditions were dispatched from Zapotlan, Colima, and Guadalajara. In the meantime the work of caring for the wounded was done by army surgeons who accompanied the troops. Platanar near which place the accident occurred, is 115 miles southwest of Guadalajara.

HELLO GIRLS HEAR 11,000,000,000 CONVERSATIONS IN ONE YEAR

Washington, June 23.—There were more than 11,000,000,000 conversations by telephone in the United States in 1907, according to estimates in the census bureau's report now being printed. This shows that in the five years of 1902 to 1907 the use of the telephone in the United States more than doubled, to be exact, increased 124 per cent.

This huge increase was accompanied by an astonishing growth in the telephone industry and a wonderful ramification of telephone wires in every part of the country. The miles of telephone wire in use in 1907 were 12,999,369 or over one and a half times the 4,900,451 miles strung in 1902. The number of employees of telephone companies nearly doubled in five years. The average number of wage-earners in 1902 was 64,628; in 1907, 118,871.

The capital stock and funded debt of the telephone companies outstanding in 1902 was $248,031,058, while five years later it was $814,616,004, an increase of 134 per cent. More striking was the increase in the earnings of the companies. In 1902 they reported incomes aggregating $66,825,636; in 1907 this total revenue had swelled to $184,461,747. The increase in revenue was therefore 112.5 per cent. But the increase in operating expenses and fixed charges during the five year period was but 108.4 per cent, from $61,652,823 in 1902 to $118,486,196 in 1907. This does not include the interest on the funded debt which increased 250.7 per cent in the same period, from $3,000,000 to $12,000,000.

How the telephone business has outstripped the telegraph is shown by 1907 figures, which state that in that year out of 14,500,000 miles of wire in use, 89 per cent was for telephones and 11 per cent for the telegraph business.

Police Court

There was good deal of activity manifested for a while this morning in police court. It was found that the policeman on their rounds last night came upon something looking suspicious in the Flats, consequently some half dozen characters were rounded up and brought before court. Three plead guilty and paid fines and for lack of evidence the other cases were dismissed.

COMO MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

BOY HUSBAND ARRESTED AND CONFESSES TO MURDERING WIFE IN ITALY.

BROTHER'S KEEN FORESIGHT

Capt. Scott, Brother of Murdered Woman, Detects Youth at Hoboken After Debarbing.

New York, June 23.—The Como murder mystery is solved.

Porter Charlton, an American youth of good family, sought by the police of two continents, was arrested in Hoboken, N. J., shortly before noon today as he stepped from the North German Lloyd steamer Princess Irene. In less than an hour he had confessed without a tremor that in a fit of temper he had killed his wife in the waters of the Italian lake.

She was Mary Scott Castle of San Francisco, a woman sixteen years his senior, divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer.

Charlton But a Boy. Charlton is only twenty-one and a son of Judge Paul Charlton, law officer of the Bureau of Insular Affairs at Washington, and a classmate of President Taft at Yale. The boy married Mrs. Castle in Wilmington, Del., last spring over his parent's protests. Ill mated, and both erratic temperament, they sailed for Italy for their honeymoon. The murder brought it to an end and her body was found in the lake by fishermen on June 10.

Fleeing from Italy under an assumed name, almost penniless and shabby of dress, Charlton on landing ran straight into the arms of Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, U. S. A., the murdered woman's brother. He was taken to police headquarters at Hoboken, where, after a pitiable collapse so spasmodic that it produced extreme nausea, he regained his composure and unflinchingly signed the confession. Tonight he is behind the bars in the Hoboken city jail, pending settlement of the complicated problem of extradition brought about by his arrest.

Brother's Foresight Accurate.

Capt. Scott's foresight, directed so accurately that it falls little short of a weird premonition, resulted in young Charlton's arrest. Stationed at Fort Wright on Fisher's Island off New London, Conn., Capt. Scott obtained hurried leave of absence at 1 o'clock this morning and went to Hoboken to scan the passengers of incoming liners. Three Hoboken detectives aided him.

He accompanied the prisoner to police court but did not hear the heart-rending confession that poured from the young man's lips. Charlton, whose collapse after arrest seemed due to fear of Capt. Scott, refused to make a statement in the army officer's presence and the latter left the room. Throughout the ordeal, Capt. Scott bore himself well, but at the request of detectives, who had noticed a bulge beneath his coat, which proved to be a pistol, he surrendered the weapon without objection. In his signed confession Charlton declared that no one else than he had a hand in the death of his wife.

GERMAN OFFICERS FORBIDDEN FUNNY PAPERS

Munich, June 23.—Much to the amusement of the public, the minister of war has prohibited German officers reading Simplicissimus, the illustrated weekly. Because of the easier press laws in Bavaria this comic journal is published in Munich and circulates all and sundry every week from the monarch to the mechanic.

The monarch doesn't mind much, but the German officer is the most sensitive being in the Fatherland and his dignity is so fragile as to be explosive at the slightest touch. So there was no surprise when the war office declared the paper too naughty for military consumption.

A few papers protest against the order and even some officers are indignant at this supervision of the officers' reading matter. Meanwhile the paper has had a big boost to its circulation by this official advertisement.

The News finds it impossible to devote the space in its columns to the discussion which the publication of such contributions be only fair to open our columns to allow one party space, it would be only fair to open our columns to any one who cared to make reply. We must decline to publish all communications of this order.

Would a republican administration, in the event one were elected, repeal the law establishing separate schools for the races? The statehood bill introduced by Dennis T. Flynn contemplated the establishing of single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single and not separate schools. That endorsement has never been reversed. Hence we conclude that a very pertinent question is, "Would a republican administration abolish our separate school system?"

PICNICS AT LIGHTNING RIDGE AND HART
There will be a picnic at Lightning Ridge on July 1st. Everybody invited to come and of course bring well-filled baskets. The candidates will all be there. So remember the date and come to lightning Ridge July 1st.

The ladies of the Woodman Circle of Hart Camp will serve ice cream and cake to the public at the school house on the night of July 2nd. They will have State Manager Joe A. Edwards to make a speech in behalf of the Woodman Circle. Will also have several candidates present to speak. Everybody is cordially invited to come and bring someone with you. —Roff Eagle.

E. P. Ferguson Passes Away.
At the ripe age of 71 years E. P. Ferguson passed away at his home on the Price farm yesterday, June 23, at 10:30 p. m.

The remains were interred at Rosedale at 4 P. M. this afternoon, Rev. A. L. Nettles officiating. He was one of the old and respected citizens of this county. One of his sons, Jim Ferguson, is one of the popular employees of the Surprise Store. The News extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE
W. H. Nettles Authorizes His Announcement for this Position

W. H. Nettles of this city authorizes his announcement for the office of Representative of Pontotoc county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Mr. Nettles is one citizen of Pontotoc county who needs little introduction. He came from Missouri 25 years ago, and has resided in this immediate vicinity for 15 years. He for years worked at his trade, that of mechanic and blacksmith; but when statehood came he was chosen justice of the peace of the Ada precinct which when place he now holds. During the history of the City he served on the council two terms and is at present a member of the city school board.

As to the sort of man he is, every body is aware. He is a splendid citizen, pure, honest and brave. His life among this people is an open book, and he invites the voters to make a careful scrutiny of his character and qualities.

If elected he says he pledges to perform his duty and to advocate truly such laws which would build up society and promote the well-being of the state. His name appears in the regular announcement column of this paper.

More from Stonewall
Deputy John Kitchens brought in L. L. Stokes from Stonewall to answer several charges; among them selling booze, disturbing the peace, carrying concealed weapons, having in his possession innocuous liquors, and a few more charges

A news item of importance, which has escaped publicity owing to the fact that it has not been generally made known, is that the Mad-ox Drug Co capital stock formerly owned by Messrs M. B. Donaghey and Roy C. Donaghey was some time ago purchased by C. J. Warren and Ed. Haraway. The officers of the company are, J. F. Maddox, President; C. J. Warren, Vice-president and Ed. Haraway, Secretary-Treasurer. The company's capital stock is $5,000.00 and it is incorporated under the laws of Oklahoma.

TOOK MESSAGES FROM SEA
"Uncorker of Ocean Bottles" Was Post Comparatively Recently Done Away With.

A curious English post, now abolished, was that of the uncorker of ocean bottles, created during the reign of Elizabeth. It owed its existence to an odd incident, in that, extraordinary as it may seem, the first news to reach England of the Dutch taking Nova Zembla came by "bottle post."

The story runs that one day a fisherman on the sands near Deal picked up a bottle, which in due time was laid before the lord high admiral of England. When opened a parchment setting forth the news just mentioned was found. When this was shown to the queen, Elizabeth was so struck by the circumstance that she at once decreed that for the future all sealed bottles sent up by the sea were to be dispatched to the lord high admiral, whose property they should become, under the designation of "sea prizes." To impress this decree upon the minds of all, especially fishermen and those dwelling on the sea coasts, Queen Bess characteristically enough intimated that neglect to comply with the royal command would mean the gallows.

In this fashion came about the office of the uncorker of ocean bottles, who alone had the right to open the bottles cast on the coast of the kingdom. Thomas Tonfield was the first Englishman to fill this post, and the records show that during one year he opened 52 bottles, flasks, flagons, and other ocean messengers, containing all sorts of news touching on matters of the sea. This office endured till the time of George III., by whom it was abolished.

WATER CARRIED 350 MILES
Supply for Miners of an Interior Australian Gold Field is Conveyed Far.

In the early days of the western Australian gold fields water was more precious even than gold. There was very little to drink and none to wash in.

But the whole field lies on a salty soil and very soon after the first rush vast condensers were working to produce distilled water. But this was at best a miserable makeshift, and at last a great enterprise was set on hand to give the new population of the fields a satisfactory water supply. It is a scheme that any country might be proud of having put through.

A practically limitless supply of water is conserved by a weir 23 miles from Perth and thence to the gold fields, a distance of 350 miles; it is carried in steel pipes, 5,000,000 gallons of it a day, and distributed everywhere it is wanted. You see the great 30 inch pipe running alongside the railroad and your way up to Kalgoorlie and every now and then pass a pumping station with a little settlement round it in the heart of the bush.

This was the last great attack on nature's defense of her treasure and now she has capitulated and is yielding up gold at the rate of millions a year.

EGOTISTICAL MEN

"Is there anything on earth," inquired the fluffy-haired blonde, "that makes you so utterly weary as the condescending action of some man you know who assures you in that complacent way peculiar to the type, that he is going to call upon you very soon? As if," she added, with an air of disgust, "we were all sitting around holding our breaths waiting for the telephone to ring, in the fond hope that it will prove to be some masculine admirer who desires to honor us with his company! I'm sick of it!"

"Me, too!" chimed in with ungrammatical fervor the girl with the coronation braid.
The fluffy-haired blonde embroidered two polka dots with a puzzled frown. "You see," she said, "if the girl has a large and well-worn sense of humor she merely smiles to herself and wonders if it would pay to jolt the man into a state of enlightenment. But if her sense of humor is undeveloped she asks herself with disturbing qualms if it is really possible that the creature thinks she is crazy about him."

She regarded the entire row of polka dots with disfavor, preparatory to beginning on another. "Not long ago," she continued, "I had the satisfaction of freeing my mind on the subject."
"Really?" cried the girl with the coronation braid.
"It was just by accident," explained the fluffy-haired blonde.
"You know," she proceeded, "I was visiting Marie in Milwaukee last month." The others nodded. "Well, a certain man whom we will call George and whom I have always known, happened to be there at the same time, on business. Now, I'm fond of George, in a way.

"When he called up the house where I was visiting and informed me that he was 'going to get out to call,' I was very amiable about it. He wanted to set a time, but naturally I couldn't make an engagement without consulting my hostess. So Marie and I talked it over, and she insisted upon shifting the entire week's calendar in order to leave an evening open for George to call. We had something interesting on hand for every night, too, but Marie felt that it would be rude not to receive George. Finally we managed it for Saturday, and I wrote George a note to that effect.

"In the course of time Saturday came, and so did George. This is the way he began: 'Well, well, you're been here ten days, have you? Really, I did mean to come out before this. I hope you'll excuse me. I've been up to my ears in work.'"
The members of the sewing circle exploded with mirth, but the fluffy-haired blonde was too indignant at the recollection even to smile. "He thought," she said, "that the joy of my visit was blighted by his inattention!"

"I was perfectly paralyzed for a moment, and then I proceeded, without heat or prejudice, to elucidate certain ethical points upon which it seemed to me George's education had been deficient.

"He listened with startled attention until I had finished, then he said, in a surprised voice: 'You mean, then, that you think I am egotistical?'"

"Painfully so," I told him.
"But really," he assured me, looking shocked, "really, you don't know me at all if you think that, not at all! Besides, I honestly was awfully busy, or I would have come out—"

The fluffy-haired blonde stopped and sighed reminiscently. "Then Marie came down," she said, "and took in the situation."

"It has just occurred to me," suggested Marie, "that if we all three like motoring, we can telephone to Charles King. He asked us to go out tonight, you know, and seemed very much disappointed that we had an engagement." She turned to George so sweetly that he was naturally obliged to acquiesce, but I noticed that he was thoughtful all evening."

The sewing circle giggled again.
"Of course," murmured the girl with the coronation braid, "men are not all like that."

"Indeed they aren't," agreed the fluffy-haired blonde, with satisfaction. "When Marie comes to visit me I want to show her that my friends are not all like George. And if we marry the nice, unassuming ones—"

"We mostly do," said young Mrs. Allston, soothingly. "The others remain bachelors, and their egotism grows upon them."

The One Place.
A gentleman was standing in the lobby of one of Birmingham's leading hotels when some one made a remark about it being so easy to get a little "wet refreshments" in the Magic City. The young man said: "I have been in Birmingham for nine days and I have never found that wet spot yet, and I want to tell you I have looked for it, too."

The "never sleep" porter of this hostelry had become interested in the conversation, and advancing close enough to the speaker to tip his cap politely, asked this question: "Boss, where is you been sleeping since you come to town?"

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE COCA-COLA FACTORY

On our rounds yesterday we dropped into Ada's new bottling works for the first time since that institution opened up for business. We were agreeably surprised at the neatness and cleanliness of the factory, machinery and furnishings which gave the casual visitor the impression that the conditions under which Coca-Cola is bottled are conducive of cleanliness and sanitation. The company has recently purchased a supply of metal cases for the use of its distributing department and this improvement is one of the latest things along its line.

A Joke on An Editor.

A good joke on an editor who went one evening to report a party at a home recently blessed with a new baby. He was met by the hostess at the door and after the usual salutations he asked after the baby's health. The lady who was quite deaf and suffering with grip thought he was asking after her cold and answered that although she usually had one every winter this was the worst one she ever had. It kept her awake at night a great deal and at first confined her to her bed. Then noticing that the newspaper man was getting servus she said that she could tell by his looks that he going to have one just like it and asked him to go in and sit down—Exchange.

Two Adults Feeling Better. S. E. Chapman and Joe Guest write homefolks that the Claremore water is helping them right along, saying their health has improved and that they are feeling like four year olds.

"THE THING THAT HAS MADE WHAT WE ARE."

'You will remember that it was Thomas Carlyle who laid down the well-known yet somewhat novel dictum regarding the important part which clothes play in the make-up of our civilization. He said 'Clothes have made us what we are. It might at first glance look like a rash undertaking to attempt to dispute the finding of such a close observer and profound philosopher, especially when we recall the altogether brilliant essay which formed the basis of this judgment. But it should be considered that Carlyle lived in a day and generation when the science of advertising as we know it was unknown and when mankind in the mass had not as yet entered under the potent spell of printer's ink. Hence I submit that this Carlylean saying has been outworn and is out of date, and that had he lived in these times and observed the all-pervading influence of advertising in every department of human affairs Sartor Resartus would probably never have been written, but in its place an equally brilliant gem of literature upon the fascinating subject of advertising.

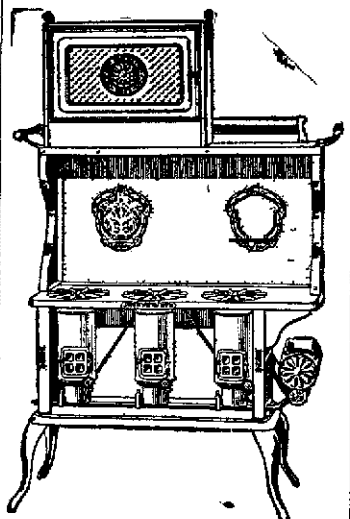

If it can be said of any one thing in particular that it has made us what we are that one thing is advertising. The printing press, the electric wire that encircles the globe the onrushing express train that crosses the continent the majestic ocean greyhound all the agencies which in our day make a joke of time and space and with these the intelligent mass of mankind from the shoeblack to the prince the devoted missionary who labors for the soul of the heathen in darkest Africa to the illustrious statesman whose every utterance is eagerly listened to by myriad millions—all these are but the pawns and players in the great world wide game of advertising.

Behold the magnificent results of advertising upon every hand. Advertising has peopled America. It is even now performing the miraculous achievement of impelling the hard-headed American farmer to forsake his country, to turn his back on the stars and stripes and in numbers of over 100,000 per year to cross the border into Canada and take upon himself the obligations of a British subject. Advertising is the modern wonder-worker—Oklahoma is its prophet. Even the American invasion of Canada is an advertising triumph of no greater import than is the epic of empire building which the past decade has witnessed in this southwestern country and which has not yet reached its high noon. Advertising goes hand in hand with faith—it does more than move mountains. It creates desires, establishes confidence, it stimulates human effort. It is the backbone of commerce. It is the greatest constructive agency in all the world. All of us are advertisers consciously or unconsciously, by our speech, our habits, our appearance and our actions and the projection of a man's business into the newspaper and periodicals or on the billboards or blazoned across the sky in letters of dazzling light is but a logical step in advance of the commonplace.

OKLAHOMA CITY REJOICES

JUDGE CAMPBELL DISMISSES
CAPITAL CASE FOR WANT OF JURISDICTION.

STILL BEFORE STATE COURT

One of Attorneys for Guthrie Says
Matter Is Still Pending in State Court.

Guthrie, Ok., June 23.—Guthrie lost its preliminary fight in the federal court today when Judge Ralph E. Campbell of the Eastern district dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, the bill in equity of W. H. Coyle, a local property owner, asking an injunction to prevent removal of the temporary seat of government from here to Oklahoma City. While the three days argument took wide range and covered generally that clause of the Oklahoma enabling act requiring the temporary capital to remain here until after 1913 and upon which the suit was predicated, the court expressly reserved any opinion touching either the part of congress to impose this condition or whether the same was binding in view of its acceptance by the constitutional convention.

The people of Guthrie are disappointed at the turn the case took. It may be truthfully said that from the day the case was instituted there was more or less doubt entertained upon the jurisdictional question alone. "The case is still before the state court," said Judge Frank Dale, one of the attorneys for Guthrie, "and we will follow our rights there. It must be noted, however, that in passing Judge Campbell refrained from expressing an opinion as to the 1913 clause. We still contend that it is binding and feel that Guthrie's rights have not been jeopardized in the least by the Federal court failing to take jurisdiction in this particular litigation."

State Court Case Different.
The case pending in the state courts differs from that before Judge Campbell today, in that it was instituted by County Attorney Hepburn in behalf of the people, and while as squarely presenting the issue of validity of the 1913 clause, also raises questions of validity of the ballot title under which the election of June 11 was held.

Attorney General West who made special appearance for Gov. Haskell and Secretary of state Cross, has filed in the Logan county, district court a demurrer to Guthrie's amendment.

ed complaint. The demurrer, he stated, would be argued as soon as Judge Huston would hear it, and if the state officers were not successful there further proceedings would be instituted. He declined to say whether this would be by appeal or by application for writ of prohibition to the supreme court. As it stands, the state officers are under injunction from the state district court, and it is understood tonight there is a probability of further proceedings in the federal court. What this will be attorneys decline to announce.

Largest Individual Tax
Payer Has The Money.

There is one man in Pontotoc county and Pontotoc is his post office, who furnishes a good object lesson to some farmers who are inclined to be pessimistic.

Another thing he shows what a man can do in this locality by using common sense, mixed with get up and get. He is assessed this year on $9,130 actual cash on hand, the largest amount for any one man in the county. (One man was heard to remark that he did not think before there was a man in the world who had so much actual money.) More than that, he is paying on $5,990 worth of cattle, $809 on mules, $560 on horses, $296 on hogs, $420 on grain, and $245 on other property.

After hearing this, we venture there are men who are doing a good commercial business and have been reckoned as men of means in the commercial world who would like to swap out lock, stock and barrel with this Pontotoc man. Who said anything about hard times?

20 SOLDIERS KILLED AND MANY WOUNDED

Train of Four Coaches Dashes Down Steep Declivity.

Mexico City, June 23.—Twenty federal soldiers are reported to have been killed and many more than that number injured today when four cars of a train in which the troops were being transported on the Manzanillo line of the National Railways in the state of Colima, broke loose from the locomotive and dashed down a steep grade.

When the cars reached a curve after tobogganing for six miles and attaining a terrific speed, they left the track and were dashed to pieces. The cars formed the rear portion of a troop train of thirteen cars which was proceeding toward Platanar. The number of men they contained was not known, but the railway officials here estimate that there were not less than 150. Many men are said to have jumped from the cars when they started down the grade and thus saved their lives. The accident was due to the breaking of a coupling and the failure of the brakes.

As fast as possible passenger Engineer Watson backed the remainder of the train to the scene of the wreck and sent a messenger to the nearest telegraph station.

Within a short time relief expeditions were dispatched from Zapotlan, Colima, and Guadalajara. In the meantime the work of caring for the wounded was done by army surgeons who accompanied the troops. Platanar, near which place the accident occurred, is 115 miles southwest of Guadalajara.

HELLO GIRLS HEAR 11,000,000,000 CONVERSATIONS IN ONE YEAR

Washington, June 23.—There were more than 11,000,000,000 conversations by telephone in the United States in 1907, according to estimates in the census bureau's report now being printed. This shows that in the five years of 1902 to 1907 the use of the telephone in the United States more than doubled, to be exact, increased 124 per cent.

This huge increase was accompanied by an astonishing growth in the telephone industry and a wonderful ramification of telephone wires in every part of the country. The miles of telephone wire in use in 1907 were 12,999,369 or over one and a half times the 4,900,451 miles strung in 1902. The number of employees of telephone companies nearly doubled in five years. The average number of wage-earners in 1902 was 64,628; in 1907, 118,871.

The capital stock and funded debt of the telephone companies outstanding in 1902 was $248,031,058, while five years later it was $814,616,004, an increase of 134 per cent. More striking was the increase in the earnings of the companies. In 1902 they reported incomes aggregating $86,825,836; in 1907 this total revenue had swelled to $184,461,747. The increase in revenue was therefore 112.5 per cent. But the increase in operating expenses and fixed charges during the five year period was but 108.4 per cent, from $61,652,823 in 1902 to $118,486,195 in 1907. This does not include the interest on the funded debt which increased 250.7 per cent in the same period, from $3,000,000 to $12,000,000.

How the telephone business has outstripped the telegraph is shown by 1907 figures, which state that in that year out of 14,500,000 miles of wire in use, 89 per cent was for telephones and 11 per cent for the telegraph business.

Police Court

There was good deal of activity manifested for a while this morning in police court. It was found that the policeman on their rounds last night came upon something looking suspicious in the Flats, consequently some half dozen characters were rounded up and brought before court. Three plead guilty and paid fines and for lack of evidence the other cases were dismissed.

COMO MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

BOY HUSBAND ARRESTED AND CONFESSES TO MURDERING WIFE IN ITALY.

BROTHER'S KEEN FORESIGHT

Capt. Scott, Brother of Murdered
Woman, Detects Youth at Hoboken After Debarking.

New York, June 23.—The Como murder mystery is solved.

Porter Charlton, an American youth of good family, sought by the police of two continents, was arrested in Hoboken, N. J., shortly before noon today as he stepped from the North German Lloyd steamer Princess Irene. In less than an hour he had confessed without a tremor that in a fit of temper he beat his wife into unconsciousness with a mallet, jammed her body in a trunk and sunk it in the waters of the Italian lake.

She was Mary Scott Castle of San Francisco, a woman sixteen years his senior, divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer.

Charlton But a Boy.
Charlton is only twenty-one and a son of Judge Paul Charlton, law officer of the Bureau of Insular Affairs at Washington, and a classmate of President Taft at Yale. The boy married Mrs. Castle in Wilmington, Del., last spring over his parent's protests. Ill matched, and both erratic temperaments, they sailed for Italy for their honeymoon. The murder brought it to an end and her body was found in the lake by fishermen on June 10.

Fleeing from Italy under an assumed name, almost penniless and shabby of dress, Charlton on landing ran straight into the arms of Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, U. S. A., the murdered woman's brother. He was taken to police headquarters at Hoboken, where, after a pitiable collapse so spasmodic that it produced extreme nausea, he regained his composure and unflinchingly signed the confession. Tonight he is behind the bars in the Hoboken city jail, pending settlement of the complicated problem of extradition brought about by his arrest.

Brother's Foresight Accurate.

Capt. Scott's foresight, directed so accurately that it falls little short of a weird premonition, resulted in young Charlton's arrest. Stationed at Fort Wright on Fisher's Island off New London, Conn., Capt. Scott obtained hurried leave of absence at 1 o'clock this morning and went to Hoboken to scan the passengers of incoming liners. Three Hoboken detectives aided him.

He accompanied the prisoner to police court but did not hear the heart-rending confession that poured from the young man's lips. Charlton, whose collapse after arrest seemed due to fear of Capt. Scott, refused to make a statement in the army officer's presence and the latter left the room. Throughout the ordeal, Capt. Scott bore himself well, but at the request of detectives, who had noticed a bulge beneath his coat, which proved to be a pistol, he surrendered the weapon without objection. In his signed confession Charlton declared that no one else than he had a hand in the death of his wife.

GERMAN OFFICERS FOR- BIDDEN FUNNY PAPERS

Munich, June 23.—Much to the amusement of the public, the minister of war has prohibited German officers reading Simplicissimus, the illustrated weekly. Because of the easier press laws in Bavaria this comic journal is published in Munich and scarifies all and sundry every week from the monarch to the mechanic.

The monarch doesn't mind much, but the German officer is the most sensitive being in the Fatherland and his dignity is so fragile as to be explosive at the slightest touch. So there was no surprise when the war office declared the paper too naughty for military consumption.

A few papers protest against the order and even some officers are indignant at this supervision of the officers' reading matter. Meanwhile the paper has had a big boost to its circulation by this official advertisement.

Entered as Second Class matter, March 26, 1904, at the Postoffice at Ada, Okla., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

This paper is in receipt of a communication from one of the prominent farmers of this county, on the prohibition question, and while the article is very ably written, and has many strong points, the limited space in our daily publication prevents our printing it. The News finds it impossible to devote the space in its columns to the discussion which the publication of such contributions be only fair to open our columns we to allow one party space, it would be only fair to open our columns to any one who cared to make reply. Wishing to be absolutely fair to every one we must decline to publish all communications of this order.

Would a republican administration, in the event one were elected, repeal the law establishing separate schools for the races? The statehood bill introduced by Dennis T. Flynn contemplated the establishing of single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single schools for the races. The republicans of Oklahoma went on record in favor of that bill. The last time the party expressed itself it endorsed single and not separate schools. That endorsement has never been reversed. Hence we conclude that a very pertinent question is, "Would a republican administration abolish our separate school system?"

PICNICS AT LIGHTNING

E. P. Ferguson Passes Away.
At the ripe age of 71 years E. P. Ferguson passed away at his home on the Price farm yesterday, June 23, at 10:30 p. m.

The remains were interred at Rosedale at 4 P. M. this afternoon, Rev. A. L. Nettles officiating. He was one of the old and respected citizens of this county. One of his sons, Jim Ferguson, is one of the popular employees of the Surprise Store. The News extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE

W. H. Nettles Authorizes His Announcement for this Position

W. H. Nettles of this city authorizes his announcement for the office of Representative of Pontotoc county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Mr. Nettles is one citizen of Pontotoc county who needs little introduction. He came from Missouri 25 years ago, and has resided in this immediate vicinity for 15 years. He for years worked at his trade, that of mechanic and blacksmith; but when statehood came he was chosen justice of the peace of the Ada precinct which place he now holds. During the history of the City he served on the council two terms and is at present a member of the city school board.

As to the sort of man he is, every body is aware. He is a splendid citizen, pure, honest and brave. His life among this people is an open book, and he invites the voters to make a careful scrutiny of his character and qualities.

If elected he says he pledges to perform his duty and to advocate truly such laws which would build up society and promote the well-being of the state. His name appears in the regular announcement column of this paper.

TOOK MESSAGES FROM SEA

"Uncorker of Ocean Bottles" Was Post Comparatively Recently Done Away With.

A curious English post, now abolished, was that of the uncorker of ocean bottles, created during the reign of Elizabeth. It owed its existence to an odd incident, in that, extraordinary as it may seem, the first news to reach England of the Dutch taking Nova Zembla came by "bottle post."

The story runs that one day a fisherman on the sands near Deal picked up a bottle, which in due time was laid before the lord high admiral of England. When opened a parchment setting forth the news just mentioned was found. When this was shown to the queen, Elizabeth was so struck by the circumstance that she at once decreed that for the future all sealed bottles sent up by the sea were to be dispatched to the lord high admiral, whose property they should become, under the designation of "sea prizes." To impress this decree upon the minds of all, especially fishermen and those dwelling on the sea coasts, Queen Bess characteristically enough intimated that neglect to comply with the royal command would mean the gallows.

In this fashion came about the office of the uncorker of ocean bottles, who alone had the right to open the bottles cast on the coast of the kingdom. Thomas Tonfield was the first Englishman to fill this post, and the records show that during one year he opened 52 bottles, flasks, flagons, and other ocean messengers, containing all sorts of news touching on matters of the sea. This office endured till the time of George III., by whom it was abolished.

WATER CARRIED 350 MILES

Supply for Miners of an Interior Australian Gold Field is Conveyed Far.

In the early days of the western Australian gold fields water was more precious even than gold. There was very little to drink and none to wash in.

But the whole field lies on a salty soil and very soon after the first rush vast condensers were working to produce distilled water. But this was at best a miserable makeshift, and at last a great enterprise was set on hand to give the new population of the fields a satisfactory water supply. It is a scheme that any country might be proud of having put through.

A practically limitless supply of water is conserved by a weir 23 miles from Perth and thence to the gold fields, a distance of 350 miles; it is carried in steel pipes, 5,000,000 gallons of it a day, and distributed everywhere it is wanted. You see the great 30 inch pipe running alongside the railroad and your way up to Kalgoolie and every now and then pass a pumping station with a little settlement round it in the heart of the bush.

This was the last great attack on nature's defense of her treasure and now she has capitulated and is yielding up gold at the rate of millions a year.

EGOTISTICAL MEN

"Is there anything on earth," inquired the fluffy-haired blonde, "that makes you so utterly weary as the condescending action of some man you know who assures you in that complacent way peculiar to the type, that he is going to call upon you very soon? As if," she added, with an air of disgust, "we were all sitting around holding our breaths waiting for the telephone to ring, in the fond hope that it will prove to be some masculine admirer who desires to honor us with his company! I'm sick of it!"

"Me, too!" chimed in with ungrammatical fervor the girl with the coronation braid.

The fluffy-haired blonde embroidered two polka dots with a puzzled frown. "You see," she said, "if the girl has a large and well-worn sense of humor she merely smiles to herself and wonders if it would pay to jolt the man into a state of enlightenment. But if her sense of humor is undeveloped she asks herself with disturbing qualms if it is really possible that the creature thinks she is crazy about him."

She regarded the entire row of polka dots with disfavor, preparatory to beginning on another. "Not long ago," she continued, "I had the satisfaction of freeing my mind on the subject."

"Really?" cried the girl with the coronation braid.

"It was just by accident," explained the fluffy-haired blonde.

"You know," she proceeded, "I was visiting Marie in Milwaukee last month." The others nodded. "Well, a certain man whom we will call George and whom I have always known, happened to be there at the same time, on business. Now, I'm fond of George, in a way.

"When he called up the house where I was visiting and informed me that he was 'going to get out to call,' I was very amiable about it. He wanted to get a time, but naturally I couldn't make an engagement without consulting my hostess. So Marie and I talked it over, and she insisted upon shifting the entire week's calendar in order to leave an evening open for George to call. We had something interesting on hand for every night, too, but Marie felt that it would be rude not to receive George. Finally we managed it for Saturday, and I wrote George a note to that effect.

"In the course of time Saturday came, and so did George. This is the way he began: 'Well, well, you've been here ten days, have you? Really, I did mean to come out before this. I hope you'll excuse me. I've been up to my ears in work.'

The members of the sewing circle exploded with mirth, but the fluffy-haired blonde was too indignant at the recollection even to smile. "He thought," she said, "that the joy of my visit was blighted by his inattention!"

"I was perfectly paralyzed for a moment, and then I proceeded, without heat or prejudice, to elucidate certain ethical points upon which it seemed to me George's education had been deficient.

"He listened with startled attention until I had finished, then he said, in a surprised voice: 'You mean, then, that you think I am egotistical?'

"Painfully so," I told him.

"But really," he assured me, looking shocked, "really, you don't know me at all if you think that, not at all! Besides, I honestly was awfully busy, or I would have come out—"

The fluffy-haired blonde stopped and sighed reminiscently. "Then Marie came down," she said, "and took in the situation."

"It has just occurred to me," suggested Marie, "that if we all three like motoring, we can telephone to Charles King. He asked us to go out tonight, you know, and seemed very much disappointed that we had an engagement." She turned to George so sweetly that he was naturally obliged to acquiesce, but I noticed that he was thoughtful all evening."

The sewing circle giggled again.

"Of course," murmured the girl with the coronation braid, "men are not all like that."

"Indeed they aren't," agreed the fluffy-haired blonde, with satisfaction. "When Marie comes to visit me I want to show her that my friends are not all like George. And if we marry the nice, unassuming ones—"

"We mostly do," said young Mrs. Allison, soothingly. "The others remain bachelors, and their egotism grows upon them."

Not such an Empire, After All. Somehow it shrinks the breadth of our country when we know that an old man can walk across it, from sea to sea, in 77 days.—Philadelphia Record.

The One Place.

A gentleman was standing in the lobby of one of Birmingham's leading hotels when some one made a remark about it being so easy to get a little "wet refreshments" in the Magic city. The young man said: "I have been in Birmingham for nine days and I have never found that wet spot yet, and I want to tell you I have looked for it, too."

The "never sleep" porter of this hostelry had become interested in the conversation, and advancing close enough to the speaker to tip his cap politely, asked this question: "Boss, where is your been stopping since you came to Birmingham?"

SOME BAD LUCK.
A breakage of the ejector lever of the News Linotype machine, put it out of commission for a couple of hours this afternoon; consequently there is a reduction in the amount of news publications and the requirement that plate matter be used.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE COCA-COLA FACTORY

On our rounds yesterday we dropped into Ada's new bottling works for the first time since that institution opened up for business. We were agreeably surprised at the neatness and cleanliness of the factory, machinery and furnishings, which gave the casual visitor the impression that the conditions under which Coca-Cola is bottled are conducive of cleanliness and sanitation. The company has recently purchased a supply of metal cases for the use of its distributing department; and this improvement is one of the latest things along its line.

Manager Riley is to be congratulated upon the excellent business his firm is building up. He believes in Printers' Ink and Publicity. Cleanliness and Good Service to his patrons, and is getting out into the business field accordingly.

A Joke on An Editor.

A good joke on an editor who went one evening to report a party at a home recently blessed with a new baby. He was met by the hostess at the door and after the usual salutations he asked after the baby's health. The lady who was quite deaf and suffering with grip, thought he was asking after her cold, and answered that although she usually had one every winter, this was the worst one she ever had; it kept her awake at night a great deal and at first confined her to her bed. Then noticing that the newspaper man was getting serious she said that she could tell by his looks that he was going to have one just like it and asked him to go in and sit down.—Exchange.

The Chautauqua.

Last afternoon the Schulz-Leigh Concert Company gave their recital and the judgment of the audience was that Mr. Forest Schulz and Miss Beasle Leigh are two people that form a company that would be a credit to any Chautauqua.

Those who heard that masterful impersonation of Chas. Dickens' characters, William Sterling Bartis last night are of one opinion. He can not be surpassed—it could not have been better.

This afternoon and evening hear the interpretative recitals by Evert Kemp and you will think the numbers growing better. The lecture by Dr. Homer T. Wilson is something that those who love the true and the beautiful can not afford to miss.

Crops Fine in Lovelady Community.

Mr. Will Ross one of the successful farmers of the Lovelady community, and one of the substantial citizens of Pontotoc says that he has never seen better prospects for good crops in his neighborhood than at the present time. While a little moisture would not be out of place, crops have not suffered from want of rain yet.

The new school house at Lovelady will be completed by the first of next month. It is up to date and thoroughly equipped with all the modern conveniences for a rural school.

Arrested at Stonewall.

Doc Reeves and J. R. Reeves of Stonewall were arrested and brought to Ada late yesterday evening by deputy Jim Dillard and Jim Adair charged with crime of having unlawfully in their possession intoxicating liquors. On being arraigned they plead not guilty whereupon the court fixed their bonds at the amount of $350 each which they made and returned to their homes.

In the Open Air.

There's no use going to Colorado or sitting on your lawns during these warm Sunday evenings to keep cool and pleasant. A force of men is busy cleaning the lawn and erecting a platform strung with light, and beginning next Sunday the evening services will be in the cool of the open air. Sprited singing and soul-searching services.

Dogs and apes could be trained to enter the election booth and vote the ballot emblem. They could be trained to tell the difference between the pictures of an eagle and the picture of a rooster. And such dogs and apes have just as good a right to vote as illiterate negroes, whose only knowledge of the ballot is of the emblem on its face.

Two Adaltes Feeling Better.
S. E. Chapman and Joe Guest write homefolks that the Claremore water is helping them right along, saying their health has improved and that they are feeling like four year olds.

THE THING THAT HAS MADE WHAT WE ARE.

"You will remember that it was Thomas Carlyle who laid down the well-known yet somewhat novel dictum regarding the important part which clothes play in the make-up of our civilization. He said: 'Clothes have made us what we are.' It might at first glance look like a rash undertaking to attempt to dispute the finding of such a close observer and profound philosopher, especially when we recall the altogether brilliant essay which formed the basis of this judgment. But it should be considered that Carlyle lived in a day and generation when the science of advertising as we know it was unknown and when mankind in the mass had not as yet entered under the potent spell of printer's ink. Hence, I submit that this Carlylean saying has been outworn and is out of date, and that had he lived in these times and observed the all-pervading influence of advertising in every department of human affairs, 'Sartor Resartus' would probably never have been written, but in its place an equally brilliant gem of literature upon the fascinating subject of advertising.

"If it can be said of any one thing in particular that it has made us what we are, that one thing is advertising. The printing press, the electric wire that encircles the globe, the onrushing express train that crosses the continent, the majestic ocean greyhound, all the agencies which in our day make a joke of time and space and with these the intelligent mass of mankind, from the shoeblack to the prince, the devoted missionary who labors for the soul of the heathen in darkest Africa to the illustrious statesman whose every utterance is eagerly listened to by myriad millions—all these are but the pawns and players in the great world-wide game of advertising.

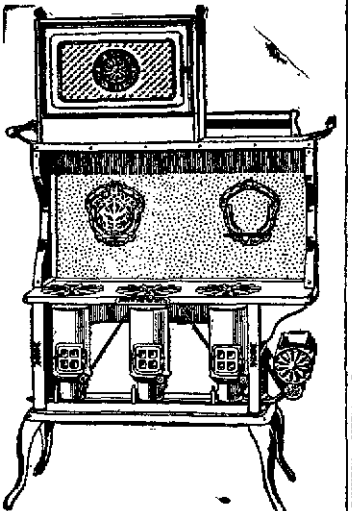

Behold the magnificent results of advertising upon every hand. Advertising has peopled America. It is even now performing the miraculous achievement of impelling the hard-headed American farmer to forsake his country, to turn his back on the stars and stripes, and in numbers of over 100,000 per year to cross the border into Canada and take upon himself the obligations of a British subject. Advertising is the modern wonder-worker—Oklahoma is its prophet. Even the American invasion of Canada is an advertising triumph of no greater import than is the epic of empire building which the past decade has witnessed in this southwestern country, and which has not yet reached its high noon. Advertising goes hand in hand with faith—it does more than move mountains; it creates desires, establishes confidence, it stimulates human effort, it is the backbone of commerce, it is the greatest constructive agency in all the world.

"All of us are advertisers, consciously or unconsciously, by our speech, our habits, our appearance and our actions and the projection of a man's business into the newspaper and periodicals or on the billboards, or blazoned across the sky in letters of dazzling light, is but a logical step in advance of the commonplace.
